CHINO BASIN WATER CONSERVATION DISTRICT

COMPOSTING WORKSHOP & MULCH GIVEAWAY

“Have Your Yard Work For You - Compost!”

Inland Empire - Chino Basin Water Conservation District (CBWCD) is offering a FREE composting workshop on Saturday, July 17, 2010 from 9:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. San Bernardino County is partnering on the event and providing subsidized compost bins to residents in their jurisdiction.

In addition to the workshop, CBWCD will be giving away FREE mulch to area residents from 9:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. (Residents must bring their own shovel and containers).

Participants are invited to learn about backyard composting, worm composting, as well as several easy to implement water conservation measures. In addition to an informative presentation, attendees will be given helpful handouts, water wise giveaways, snacks and a tour of CBWCD's drought tolerant demonstration garden. A limited supply of bags of soil amendment, donated by IEUA, will be available to class participants. To reserve a space, please call 909-626-2711.

Special live appearance by Compost Man who will physically show you the benefits of composting!

CBWCD is located at 4594 San Bernardino Street in Montclair. Their beautiful, water wise demonstration garden and is open to the public seven days a week from 8:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.

For more information on the workshop or mulch giveaway, please see the attached flyer, visit www.cbwcd.org or call 909-626-2711.
